Jackson-George Regional Library System Introduces New Self-Service Kiosks for Quick and Easy Book Checkouts

Jackson-George County, MS — The Jackson-George Regional Library System (JGRLS) is pleased to announce the launch of new self-service kiosks, designed to streamline the book checkout process for patrons. Available in all branches, these user-friendly kiosks will allow library visitors to check out books quickly and independently, enhancing their library experience.

The new kiosks are simple to use: patrons simply scan their library card, scan their books, and click "logout" to complete their checkout. With no lines and minimal wait times, the self-service kiosks provide an efficient option for those who may be in a hurry.

“Our goal is to make the library experience as convenient and accessible as possible,” said Jeanne Damiano, Assistant Director CMS/IT. “These kiosks are perfect for patrons who want to quickly check out their books and be on their way. If anyone needs assistance, our friendly staff at the front desk are always available to help.”

In addition to improving convenience for library users, the kiosks also offer an easy and private way to manage your account. Patrons are encouraged to give them a try during their next visit.

For more information about the self-service kiosks or other library services, please visit www.jgrls.org or contact your local branch.
